Shiport China 2008

With ten years of experience since 1998, Shiport China has grown into the largest maritime event in north China as well as enjoys a good reputation in world marine industry. As the flagship maritime event in the region, Shiport China has always been the focus of attention.

Shiport China 2006 attracted 360 exhibitors on an exhibition area of 15,000 square meters and more than 13,000 visitors. 14 associated seminars and academic conferences on varied topics were also hosted alongside the main exhibition. The exhibition featured Chinese marine equipment manufacturers/suppliers and the number of exhibiting companies was larger than its previous editions.

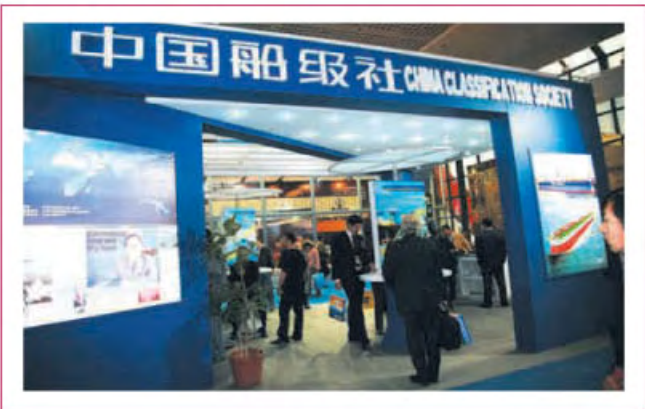

The 6th edition of the biennial event Shiport China 2008 will be taking place from November 5 - 8 , 2008 at the port, industrial, trade and tourism city of Dalian, one of the attractive cities for foreign investment in northeast China. We are expecting 500 high quality exhibitors and 15,000 visitors to attend the upcoming significant international maritime event.

The Venue

Dalian World Expo Center is a brand-new world class exhibition venue, conveniently situated near the waterfront in the western commercial center of Dalian, 10 kilometers from Dalian International Airport, 5 kilometers from Dalian Railway Station and 8 kilometers from Port of Dalian. It takes about 30 minutes drive from Dalian International Airport to Dalian World Expo Center.

With a total area of 80,000 square meters of exhibition space and a building area of 141,000 square meters, Dalian World Expo Center has become a modern facility for larger international trade fairs. The main exhibition and associated conferences & forums of Shiport China 2008 will take place just inside the building.

Dalian Maritime Facts

- Dalian, covering 12,574 square km with a population of 5.5 million, is recognized as the spearhead of Northeast China in economic growth. It ranked in a GDP of 256.9 billion yuan (33.8 billion U.S. dollars) in 2006.
- In 2003, the PRC government proposed to rejuvenate the old industrial bases in Northeast China, and to build Dalian into an important International Shipping Center. Close to Japan, ROK, Russia and DPRK, Dalian is the transportation hub of Northeast Asia.
- Dalian owns one of the top 5 largest shipbuilders in the world, Dalian Shipbuilding Corporation, and 13 other shipyards, plus 32 ship-repairing enterprises, over 300 marine equipment enterprises, 2 science & research institutes and 4 relevant academies of universities.
- As one of the largest and the most important shipbuilding base in China, Dalian has been stepped up into world - level in shipbuilding industry. At present, the general shipbuilding tonnages of Dalian occupied 1/3 in China.
- The newly built Dalian Marine Equipment Park (DMEP) located on the Changxing Island (252 square km, the fifth biggest island in China) is the largest shipbuilding base in North China and one of the most developed seaports in the Northeast Asia. DMEP will become an advantageous platform for domestic and foreign enterprises specialized in marine equipment to open markets and to move or establish subsidiary production bases in China.
- Dalian's rapidly developing and already successful shipbuilding and port industries make it one of the ideal destinations for foreign marine suppliers to promote their products and services.
- The shipbuilding capacity of Dalian reached 3,000,000 DWT by the end of 2005. It could reach 6,000,000 DWT until 2010. Dalian plans to raise the shipbuilding capacity to 10,000,000 DWT and develop to be the largest shipbuilding center in China by 2020.
- In the first half of 2007, total order of new ships built in China exceeded Korea and made China a new leader in the world shipbuilding market.
- Most recently, Dalian successfully hosted the World Economic Forum (the first edition of Summer Davos) in September 2007.
